BARN reaches out to youth!

The BARN vision includes the variety and liveliness of place that invites intergenerational learning. Now, thanks to a grant from the Bainbridge Community Foundation, BARN has completed an outreach effort that engaged over 100 youth from local schools. These students shared their BARN could mean for them. This information will help the eleven BARN studios create classes and programs that appeal to youth as well as other learners.

As a result of the study, a Youth Council is being formed to ensure that BARN offers classes that bring the generations together as well as those that appeal specifically to young people. In addition to classes and workshops, the Council will help plan programs such as internships, mentorships, and service projects

Upcoming summer programs will include a variety of workshops and events to invite youth and families into the BARN community. Watch the BARN website for more information about these new programs!
